INTRODUCTION

The International English Language Testing System (IELTS) is a globally recognized language proficiency test that serves as a gateway to higher education opportunities abroad for students (Read, 2022). The IELTS test evaluates candidates' English language skills and provides a standardized measure of their ability to communicate effectively in an academic setting. It is divided into four sections: listening, reading, writing, and speaking. A high IELTS score is now required for admission to international universities, making it an important stepping stone for students wishing to pursue international education (Pearson, 2019). Mastering the English language, particularly in the context of IELTS, is critical for students planning to study abroad. As universities around the world embrace multicultural environments, a strong command of English is becoming increasingly important for successful academic integration and social interaction. The IELTS test evaluates language abilities in a variety of areas, ensuring that students are well-prepared for the academic rigors and language demands that they will face in a foreign educational setting. A good IELTS score not only demonstrates language proficiency, but it also demonstrates a student's adaptability and willingness to participate in cross-cultural learning experiences (Yuzar et al., 2022).

The four sections of the IELTS test, listening, reading, writing, and speaking, challenge candidates to demonstrate their language skills in a variety of contexts. The listening section assesses the ability to understand spoken language, which is necessary for understanding lectures, class discussions, and social interactions in an academic setting. The reading section assesses students' ability to interpret and analyze academic texts, which is necessary for conducting research, participating in class debates, and comprehending complex concepts. The writing section evaluates candidates' ability to articulate their thoughts and ideas coherently in written form, which is necessary for writing academic essays and research papers. Finally, the speaking section assesses the fluency and accuracy of spoken English, which is necessary for effective classroom participation and the development of interpersonal relationships.

IMPLEMENTATION AND METHODS

The collaboration between the State Islamic Institute of Lhokseumawe and Dayah Al-Muslimun, a renowned Islamic Boarding School in North Aceh, was formed with the overarching goal of improving students/participants' English language proficiency. Recognizing the importance of English as a global language (Rahman & Saputra, 2021), and its growing importance in academic and professional settings, both institutions collaborated to offer a comprehensive and immersive training program. The partnership aimed to create a dynamic and effective learning environment for students by combining the academic expertise of the State Islamic Institute with the well-established educational practices of Integrated Dayah Al-Muslimun. The enthusiastic response from the community service participants, primarily, students eager to develop their language skills and broaden their horizons, demonstrated the training program's success. These participants recognized the significance of mastering English as a prerequisite for academic success, having a strong desire to pursue higher education. opportunities both locally and internationally. The comprehensive curriculum of the program, which addressed the four key language components of listening, speaking, reading, and writing, catered to the students’ diverse needs, ensuring a well-rounded development of their English language abilities.

The collaborative training initiative was a transformative experience for community service participants, creating an environment of interactive and engaging language learning. The program provided students with practical opportunities to apply their newly acquired language skills through a combination of interactive workshops, language immersion activities, and real-life simulations. Furthermore, the collaboration between the State Islamic Institute and Dayah Al-Muslimun allowed for a unique blend of traditional Islamic teachings and modern educational practices in the language learning process, emphasizing values such as empathy, respect, and cross-cultural understanding. The engaging language-learning program will be carried out over the course of a period of four months (February 6th - June 3rd 2023), which will be subdivided into a total of sixteen different sessions. This well-structured timeline allows for a systematic approach to language learning, which ensures that each component of the IELTS examination is thoroughly covered and practiced. The length of the program gives participants plenty of time to absorb the information and practices that are being taught to them in a step-by-step fashion by the instructors. The tutors are able to implement a comprehensive learning strategy, which includes periodic evaluations and feedback sessions, because the meetings are spread out over a period of four months. This allows the tutors to effectively monitor the participants’ progress.

The instructors of this training program have a wealth of experience leading other training sessions that are comparable to this one, and they have also taken the IELTS exam more than once. Their firsthand experience as test takers enables them to empathize with the challenges faced by the participants in the community service, and as a result, they are able to provide individualized guidance and support throughout the entirety of the training journey. The purpose of the tutoring sessions is to improve the participants’ language abilities and test-taking strategies by utilizing effective teaching methodologies, interactive exercises, and practical tips. The tutors will draw on their expertise in this area. This individualized approach guarantees that every participant will receive individualized instruction that is tailored to address their particular linguistic requirements. The training program is guaranteed to be both thorough and all-encompassing. This strategy not only improves the continuity of the training, but it also gives the participants the opportunity to develop learning experiences with the instructors over the course of the four-month period. The learning process is streamlined as a result of the absence of external speakers, which enables a focused and coherent training experience that is aligned with the participants’ particular goals and objectives related to their community service.
The comprehensive materials that are going to be provided by the tutors are going to cover a variety of different kinds of tests, and they are going to offer detailed explanations and practical examples to help the participants improve their language skills as well as their ability to take tests. The program has a structured timeline that ensures a methodical and comprehensive approach to language learning (Damanik, 2022). Participants can anticipate receiving individualized direction and assistance throughout the duration of the training journey from tutors who have previous experience in taking the IELTS test themselves. The decision to not invite external speakers will further enhance the training's continuity and effectiveness by capitalizing on the expertise of the tutors. This will foster a learning environment that is cohesive and engaging by capitalizing on the expertise of the tutors.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

Participants in this community service program expect to significantly enhance their language competence as a consequence of their participation in the complete English language training program, which will also prepare them for the IELTS exam. The guidance and expertise provided by the experienced tutors, who have already taken the IELTS test multiple times, will prove to be of great value in assisting the participants in developing effective test-taking strategies and understanding the assessment criteria (Estaji & Banitalebi, 2022). The participants will be equipped with the confidence necessary to confidently tackle the challenges that are presented in the IELTS examination by utilizing the carefully designed materials, which cover various types of assessments and include explanations and examples.
