Praise be to God Almighty, for His grace and blessings, Melas Journal of Education is once again able to present this latest edition. This journal serves as a platform for academicians, researchers, and education practitioners to share findings and insights in the ever-evolving field of education.

Since its inception, Melas Journal of Education has aimed to be a medium for various scholarly works, research, and articles in the field of education from diverse perspectives. In this edition, we are pleased to present a range of articles covering important topics, from innovations in teaching and educational policy, to curriculum development and the role of technology in education. All articles published have undergone a rigorous selection process and peer review to ensure their quality and contribution to the advancement of educational sciences.

We hope that this publication will make a positive impact on the world of education, not only at the local level but also globally. Every article featured is expected to provide fresh insights, enrich the educational literature, and encourage collaboration and productive discussions among academics and education practitioners worldwide.

We would like to extend our gratitude to all authors, reviewers, and everyone who has contributed to the publication of this edition. May Melas Journal of Education continue to benefit and inspire readers and education professionals around the world.

Happy Reading
